ANNUAL REPORT 2015-2016
The Warburg Institute is the premier institute in the world for the study of cultural history and the role of images in culture. It is dedicated to the history of ideas, the dissemination and transformations of images in society, and the relationship between images, art and their texts and subtexts, of all epochs and across the globe. As its motto - Mnemosyne - and its Library make clear it was the forerunner of current concerns with memory and material culture.

Founded by Aby Warburg in Hamburg at the end of the nineteenth century and exiled from Germany in 1933, the Warburg Library was initially concerned with the survival of classical antiquity in Renaissance art but its range swiftly expanded. It attracted the greatest scholars and philosophers of the time – from Erwin Panofsky and Edgar Wind to Ernst Cassirer and Walter Benjamin – and became one of the leading centres in Germany for the understanding of the interactions between images and society across time and space. It transformed the histories of art, literature, and music, and in emphasizing fields such as astrology and magic anticipated many of the developments in the modern understanding of the history of science.

From the outset the Warburg Institute has been notable for its interdisciplinary research extending across the histories of art, science and religion to anthropology and psychology. Its contributions to the epistemological and methodological underpinnings of the histories and theories of culture have been profound and paradigm-changing.

One of the Warburg’s distinctive features has always been its engagement with what are often considered the superstitious, irrational and emotional elements of cultural phenomena. This has enabled some of its most significant contributions to the understanding of both the dynamics and forms of cultural transmission.

The Warburg Library, famous for its powerful and suggestive system of classification, has unique strengths in all these areas, but particularly in the fields of Byzantine, Medieval and Renaissance art, the history of humanism and the classical tradition, Italian history, Arabic, medieval and Renaissance philosophy, and the histories of religion, science and magic. A hallmark of the Warburg Institute today is its disciplinary openness, which makes it a critical focal point for innovative research across the borderlines between the humanities, the sciences and the social sciences.

The Institute Library and its collections are open to academics and postgraduate students of the University of London and to teachers and research students from any universities and institutions. Scholars and researchers who have no institutional affiliation but have an interest in any of the areas in which we hold materials may also apply for admission. Information on how to apply can be found at our website http://warburg.libguides.com/library

The Institute accepts research postgraduate students for the degree of PhD by dissertation only, and also offers two, one year, full-time taught MA Programmes: the MA in Cultural and Intellectual History from 1300 to 1650 and the MA in Art History, Curatorship and Renaissance Culture offered in collaboration with the National Gallery. Seminars, public lectures and informal talks are given throughout the year and regular international colloquia organized. Publications include the Journal of the Warburg and Courtauld Institutes, and four series of texts and monographs.

Information on the Institute and its activities is available at our website http://warburg.sas.ac.uk.

INTRODUCTION

2015-16 has been a year of progress and development for the Institute. The agreement reached between the Institute and the University and signed in July 2015 has been implemented successfully with good will and enthusiasm. The Institute is pleased to have made a positive contribution to the work of the School of Advanced Study in research, teaching and research facilitation and promotion.

I joined the Institute as Director in summer 2015 and I, along with all staff and members of the Advisory Council, would like to record our thanks to Dr Raphaële Mouren who served so ably as Acting Director of the Institute during 2014-15.

The key event in the Institute’s calendar this year was the Aby Warburg 150th Anniversary Conference. Held from 13th – 15th of June. The event was organised by myself and Claudia Wedepohl and attracted over 550 attendees from around the world. A large group of distinguished scholars discussed the implications of Warburg’s thought for the history of art, images and cultures and revealed the potential of his work to contribute to current debates about contemporary cultural differences. We were grateful to the Max Kohler Stiftung, the Martha Pulvermacher Stiftung, the Samuel H. Kress Foundation, the German Federal Ministry of Education and Research / Bilderfahrzeuge Project and the Warburg-Haus in Hamburg for their financial support for the conference. Many other events were held throughout the year including the well-attended E H Gombrich Lectures, supported by Princeton University, and delivered by Professor Joseph Koerner in March on The Evidence of Images: Bosch, Beckmann, Kentridge.

The Institute welcomed 11 new MA students at the beginning of the academic year and four new PhD students, a smaller cohort than we expected and we made renewed efforts to promote our courses and research interests and expertise during the academic year. An Open Day entitled Moving Walls, Opening Doors was held on 25 May showcasing a broad range of the Institute’s work which generated considerable interest from visitors from as far afield as Dubrovnik and Rome. Thanks to this and other initiatives recruitment improved significantly for entry in 2016. A review of the MA in Cultural and Intellectual History was conducted by the University’s Quality Assurance Unit in Spring 2016 which resulted in a positive outcome. In particular, the review highlighted the excellent quality of the student experience including the support provided by academic staﬀ.

The three-year, HERA-funded research project Encounters with the Orient (led by Professor Charles Burnett) is drawing to an end and in July an international conference was held at the University of Kent to showcase the outcomes. A bid was submitted late in the year to the Mellon Foundation to support the creation of a new Chair in the History of Art, Science and Folk Practice and a two-year postdoctoral fellowship in a related field; and funding of 1.2 million Euros was secured from the Nomis Foundation under its Distinguished Scientist Scholar Programme to appoint Professor Manos Tsakiris, Professor of Neuroscience at Royal Holloway, to deliver an innovative and cross-disciplinary research project focussing on neural responses to images entitled Body and Image in Art and Science (BIAS) over a three-year period commencing in September 2016.

During the year a great deal of work was undertaken to improve the appearance of the building including a more welcoming entrance to the Institute. Longer term plans to develop the infrastructure of the building are under discussion with the University; these will consider current space usage and the need to accommodate growth and development of activities, staff and student numbers and the Institute Collections.

The year saw the arrival of a number of new members of staﬀ in addition to the new Director: Dr Joanne Anderson as Lecturer in the History of Art in August 2015; Ms Susanne Page as Building and Facilities Manager in October 2015; Mr Richard Gartner to a new position of Digital Librarian in January 2016; and Andrew Hewish to a fixed-term position as Public Engagement and Media Officer in April 2016. Dr Sebastien Moureau joined the Institute in October 2015 as Long-Term Frances A. Yates postdoctoral fellow working on the transmission of knowledge from the Arab-Muslim world to the Latin West in the Middle Ages. Nessa Malone and Claudia Daniotti took up positions as temporary Library Reading Room Assistants in January and February 2016 respectively and David Baker and Chris Fripp were our Graduate Library Trainees for the year. The temporary appointment of Dr Berthold Kress as Academic Assistant digitising the astrological sections of the Photographic Collection, generously funded by the Samuel Kress Foundation, ended on 30 April 2016 and Nuria Martinez de Castilla Munoz, a post-doctoral fellow working on the HERA-funded Encounters with the Orient research project left the Institute in July to take up a senior position at the École Practique des Hautes Études. A new position of Deputy Director was established early in the calendar year and in June Professor Michelle O’Malley, Head of Research at the University of Sussex, was appointed as the first post-holder with effect from 1 October 2016.

Professors Ben Kaplan, Hugh Kennedy and Dilwyn Knox ended their terms of office as members of the Institute Advisory Council and we record our thanks to them for their support and commitment during their terms of office. We are also most grateful to Mrs Benita Cioppa who stood down from membership of the Advisory Council as a representative of the Warburg family in summer 2016 after many years of dedicated service. Her unstinting interest and support for the Institute and her wit and humour will be sadly missed.

Finally, we must record our thanks to Professor Margaret McGowan, who stood down as Chairman of the Advisory Council of the Institute in summer 2016, for her decisive guidance, vision and respect for the past and her caution and encouragement during a most difficult and challenging period in the history of the Institute. The firm foundation on which we are now able to move forward with the development of the Institute has been due in no small measure to Professor McGowan’s advice and leadership.

LIBRARIAN’S REPORT

In October 2015 Dr François Quiviger, Assistant Librarian, took a year of sabbatical leave. He was temporarily replaced by Dr Nessa Malone, who was appointed Reading Room Assistant on a one year contract. François’ sabbatical was followed by his decision to take early retirement in September 2016. François joined the Library in 1987 after completing his PhD at the Warburg. Though based primarily in the Library, he contributed greatly to the academic life of the Institute through his publishing, editing and teaching work, and he oversaw the Warburg website for many years and our digital projects. As Reading Room Librarian he was a familiar figure to all readers and will be greatly missed. We thank him for his thirty years of service and wish him well for the future.

Following her retirement in June 2012 our Conservator, Sue Campion, returned in October of that year to work for both the Library and the Archive for a period of part-time consultancy which concluded in December 2015. We are very grateful for Sue’s skilful contribution to the ongoing repair and preservation of the collections over several years and for her willingness to continue to provide much-appreciated assistance to the Library and Archive for some considerable time after her retirement.

Dr Claudia Daniotti joined the library team on a one-year contract. Claudia was manning the reading room on evenings and Saturdays, labelling new acquisitions and helping her colleagues in many other ways. Her contract has been renewed for the year 2016-2017.

Following an agreement with the University after the High Court judgment, which was handed down in November 2014, we were able to establish a new position of Digital Librarian. We appointed Dr Richard Gartner, Lecturer at King’s College and former Pearson New Media Librarian at the Bodleian Library, Oxford. Dr Gartner is in charge of creating a new digital library and implementing various digital projects for the Library and the Institute.

The Library increased the number of training sessions offered to our students and will develop research tools to assist all readers in the near future.

A new library management system, shared by Senate House Library, the School of Advanced Study libraries and a few other associated libraries, was implemented during the course of the year. It will be complemented in the future by a new discovery module that will replace the existing old-style OPAC and will offer users the possibility of searching a variety of resources in addition to the main catalogue. We have worked closely with Senate House Library on this project, Dr Raphaële Mouren being a member of the steering committee and Dr Philip Young being a member of the functional specification document workgroup.

Dr Raphaële Mouren attended the meetings of the School of Advanced Study Librarians chaired by M. Jules Winterton, Pro-dean for Libraries.

Reading Room

During the year, the appearance of the Reading Room changed. Lockers were installed in the Reading Room corridor for the use of readers. The little-used card catalogues were moved to the back of the room and a comfortable sofa and armchairs were installed in their place. The pigeonholes for recent periodicals were also moved near to the entrance of the room, along with new tables to display the Library’s most recent acquisitions. The dividers between the desks were removed and new lights purchased, allowing the room to feel more open. We hope that these measures provide a welcoming atmosphere for readers.

Collection development

A total of 2,972 printed items (2,810 books and 162 offprints) were added to our collection, compared to 3,296 such items (2,884 books and 412 offprints) the previous year. We purchased 62% of the printed books which were accessioned (1,834), and another 5% (140) were acquired through exchanges; while 34% (836 books and 162 offprints) were presented as donations. We added three new print journals: Dance Research Journal, Latinitas and Journal of Cognitive Historiography. We also purchased access to the DigiZeitschriften.
online collection of German periodicals. We greatly expanded our selection of electronic resources in 2015/16 due to a new fund granted from the University of London dedicated to e-resources. We added the following resources to our electronic collections: L’Année philologique; Aristoteles Latinus Database; Bibliographie de civilisation médiévale; Brepols Latin; Brepols Medieval Encyclopedias; Brill’s Studies in Intellectual History Online; The Burlington Magazine premium online archive; Dictionary of Medieval Latin from British Sources Online; Dictionnaire d’histoire et de géographie ecclésiastiques; DigiZeitschriften; Index of Christian Art; International Bibliography of Art; International Bibliography of Humanism and the Renaissance; International Medieval Bibliography; Mirabile; Patrologia Orientalis database.

Expenditure on printed material amounted to 79% of the Library’s allocated collection development budget, and expenditure on electronic resources (e-books, e-journals and online databases) constituted 21% of the total. This reflects the Library’s policy of continuing to maintain its print holdings, while also increasing its commitment to providing its readers with access to online resources in those subject areas for which it is renowned. Of the proportion (79%) spent on printed material, books accounted for 68% and periodicals for 32% of this expenditure.

The extent to which the Library can maintain its formidable coverage of the many subject areas in its holdings continues to depend upon the generous financial bequests received from Professor Albert Lovett, Dr Margaret Gibson and Mrs Elizabeth Gibson, the estates of Dr Heidi Heimann and of O. Judith Dundas, as well as the donations of books and periodicals and of sums of money given for the Library’s collection development fund. In the past year we have received some important collections respectively from the libraries of Professor Nicholas Goodrick-Clarke (on the history of western esotericism); A. R. Bullock (on the history of Arabic and Islamic science and philosophy); and Elizabeth de Leeuw (on the history of art).

Among the many institutions, both in the UK and abroad, which have donated publications to the Library over the past year, we would like to give special thanks to: Accademia Fulgini di Lettere, Scienze e Arti (Foligno); Accademia Nazionale dei Lincei (Rome); Archivio storico della Città di Bolzano; Associazione per la Storia della Chiesa Bresciana (Brescia); Bibliothèque de l'École des chartes (Paris); The British Museum; Cambridge University Library; Carl Friedrich von Siemens Stiftung (Munich); The Centre for the Study of Manuscript Cultures, University of Hamburg; Centro Internazionale Studi di Estetica (Palermo); Christie’s (various offices worldwide); Cyprus Research Centre (Nicosia); École nationale supérieure des sciences de l’information et des bibliothèques (Villeurbanne); Ferdinand Schöningh Verlag; Florida State University Museum of Fine Arts; The Folklife Society (London); Fundación Botín (Santander); The Institute of Classical Studies; Instytut Filologii Klasycznej (Warsaw); The International Journal of the Classical Tradition; Internationales Forschungszentrum Kulturwissenschaften (Vienna); The Iris & B. Gerald Cantor Center for Visual Arts at Stanford University; The A. G. Leventis Foundation; Museo de Bellas Artes de Asturias (Oviedo); Narodowe Centrum Kultury (Warsaw); The Royal Library, Windsor; Senate House Library; Stephen Ongpin Fine Art; Universaar (Universitätsverlag des Saarlandes); University of Salento; University of Venice Ca’ Foscarì.

Binding
We sent a total of 992 items out for binding; 792 for Lyfguarding and 200 for hardbinding.

Readers
This year we issued 999 new tickets and renewed 1,244, making a total of 2,243 readers (a decrease of just one from last year). These figures include 530 readers from abroad (312 academic staff, 164 students and 54 from other overseas institutions) and 491 University of London postgraduate students.

Our third reader satisfaction survey was conducted in June 2016 with a total of 665 respondents, though not all of them answered every question. Of the 570 respondents who replied to all questions and expressed their overall satisfaction level with the Library, 75% indicated that they were ‘very satisfied’ and 23% that they were ‘mostly satisfied’, with the remaining 2% being ‘sometimes satisfied’ (we are pleased to report that none of the respondents to this question were ‘not at all satisfied’). The aspects of the Library which recorded the highest level of satisfaction from all respondents were the helpfulness of the staff (with whom 81% of readers were ‘very satisfied’), the coverage of languages (with which 73% of readers were ‘very satisfied’), the noise level of the study environment (with which 73% of readers were ‘very satisfied’) and the range of books (with which 71% of readers were ‘very satisfied’). Only 41% of all respondents assigned the highest rating to our opening hours; but we hope that this will be improved upon in the 2016/17 academic year when (except for August and September) the Library will be open for more hours each week than it has ever been. Similarly, only 32% of readers were ‘very satisfied’ (and 8% were ‘not at all satisfied’) with the photocopying facilities, which we hope will be addressed by the introduction in the Summer of 2016 of better machines which will offer scanning and printing facilities, as well as more advanced and less expensive photocopying options. The vast majority of the comments made about the Library by survey respondents were very positive, with several readers noting how important it has been (and continues to be) for their research, especially because of the range and depth of its holdings, its open-shelf policy and the helpfulness and knowledge of its staff. The heating system and the temperature in winter and summer were the most criticized.

The Warburg Library Online
The Warburg’s first Digital Librarian, Richard Gartner, took up his post in January 2016. His remit is to establish the Warburg’s digital library, a curated repository for its collections of digitized resources. The first six months of 2016 were spent laying the groundwork for the future digital library, principally researching and assessing suitable platforms to host it. It was decided as a result of these researches to employ the platform known as Islandora, an open-source digital library application based on a powerful repository system known as Fedora.

The Digital Librarian also worked closely with colleagues in the Photographic Collection during this period, to examine ways in which its Iconographic Database, currently a bespoke in-house application, could be reconfigured into a more interoperable form; this would enable its collections to be shared more readily with those outside the Warburg. A strategy has been devised based on this work to move the database to a new platform, work on which will commence in 2017.

Library Committees
The Library continued to be represented on the London-wide subject committees for Byzantine Studies, Classics, History of Art and History.

PHOTOGRAHCIC COLLECTION REPORT

Work continued on the Iconographic Database, with over 10,000 images and records being added during the session. Ca 3,000 of these records were created by Dr Berthold Kress while working on a four month project, funded by the Kress Foundation, to incorporate our holdings of classical epic narrative cycles, including the history of Troy, the Odyssey, the history of Thebes, the Argonautica, and the Aeneid. Dr Kress then stayed for two further months to work on a second project, which arose in response to a generous gift of ca 1000 images - slides, photographs and microfilms - donated to the Institute by Dr Evelyn Silber of the University of Glasgow. The material is connected to Dr Silber’s research on the popular medieval picture book the Speculum humanae salvationis, which traced ‘typological’ prefigurations of New Testament events in the Old Testament. The images have been added to the section of the Database already created by Dr Kress for the other widely-read medieval compendium of typology, the Biblia pauperum. The combination of these holdings, together with ca 2500 other images from Speculum manuscripts located online by Dr Kress, has produced the largest internet resource for the study of typological imagery.

Besides his work on these funded projects Dr Kress has continued to add material to the Database in his own time. In particular he has incorporated ca 2,000 of his own photographs of religious murals from Bavaria. Other material has been added to the database by an unusually large number of part-time volunteers: Allegra Baggio Corradi, Sarah Coviello, Giosuè Fabiano, Miba Stierman, Emma Dove, Natalia Lozada Mendieta, Isabella Taylor and Felix Martin.

With the help of the Institute’s Digital Librarian, Dr Richard Gartner, we have made arrangements to rebuild the Iconographic Database. We intend to collaborate with the Knowledge Media institute at the Open University, who will provide us with a new database design based on Open Linked Data. The purpose of rebuilding is to guarantee the long-term maintenance and development of the Database, to upgrade it to the latest standards in database design and performance, and to make it fully compatible with existing internet standards. In a three-month internship at the Institute from April to June 2017, dott.ssa Eleonora Moiraghi of the École nationale des chartes has been exploring the possibility of using the digital technology IIIF (International Image Interoperability Framework) in order to make this transition possible.

We have continued the physical re-arrangement of the Photographic Collection, clearing the space at the east end of the room, which is in use as the office of the Cassiano dal Pozzo project until September 2017. The glass negatives and unfiled photographs that were stored in this part of the room have been moved into storage in the old bindery on the fourth floor.

As ever, we thank Jennifer Montagu and Elizabeth McGrath for their continued help and advice.

ARCHIVE REPORT

With 74 scholars who consulted the collections the Archive or sought the expertise of its staff in 2015-2016, the number of users remained steady. Most visits, among them many by members of the Institute’s Bilderfahrzeuge research project, concerned Aby Warburg’s collection of papers and the Institute’s correspondence. Both the Archivist and the Assistant Archivist (funded by the same Bilderfahrzeuge project) assisted readers and visitors on site. They also dedicated a significant amount of time to enquiries; this included liaising with both the Institute’s photographer and administration for more than 80 orders of photographs. In addition, interest in the collection was reflected in several requests for group visits by teachers from London institutions and European Universities. The Archive also consolidated its collaboration with the Warburg-Haus in Hamburg by providing historic photographs of the KBW for the Warburg-Haus’s new homepage.

During this session the Assistant Archivist continued to enter data in the electronic catalogue of the General Correspondence which is available online at the new URL http://wi-calm.sas.ac.uk/calmview/. He created ca 5,000 entries for letters dated from the years 1931 and 1932. In order to improve the accessibility of the Archive’s collections two volunteers helped sorting and dating all portrait photographs of members of the Warburg family and scholars who were affiliated with the Institute. All prints are now housed in new transparent photo pockets. Also the digital collection of Warburg family photographs was completed. The Archive is grateful to Francesca Casamassima who helped during August and September, and Aaron Fordwoh whose internship lasted from January to May.

A number of collections already housed at the Institute have been moved and incorporated in the Archive during this session; they are currently awaiting cleaning, conservation and, subsequently, cataloguing. Ruth Rubinstein’s papers were sorted and moved from the Photographic Collection, together with the remaining Photographic Collection Correspondence (after 1958). The Library Correspondence (from 1982 to 2006) was moved, too, and the Accession Books (from 1933/34 to 1996). The largest amount of documents moved to the Archive was the General Correspondence (1993-2005) from the Secretariat. These papers were also transferred to Archive boxes.

For the major Aby Warburg 150. Work. Legacy. Promise conference which was held on 13 to 15 June to mark the 150th anniversary of the birth of the Institute’s founder, the Archive staff prepared (together with Andrew Hewish) an exhibition of materials from Warburg’s collections of photographs and documents titled “Verknüpfungszwang”. For four weeks these materials were displayed in seven showcases in a newly created open area in the Photo Collection.

Shots for two films were taken in the Archive during this session. In October 2015 the American art historian Judith Wechsler spent one week at the Institute with her assistant Erika O’Conor. They were filming many documents from the Archive and interviewing scholars for Wechsler’s “Aby Warburg. Metamorphosis and Memory”, a 60 minutes-long film on the life and work of Aby Warburg. In November 2015 the French artist Natacha Nisic filmed passages from Warburg’s World War I and Kreuzlingen records and used images from his trip to the American Southwest for her film “Plutot mourir que mourir va”
(“Rather die than die”). Nisic was one of many Archive users with a special interest in Warburg’s response to the Great War.

During this session both Archivist and Assistant Archivist also continued work on the edition of the forthcoming volume of Aby Warburg’s Essays and Lectures (Kleine Schriften und Vorträge, vol. III.1 of series of the Gesammelte Schriften. Studienausgabe), concentrating on revisions and the writing-up of introductions to Warburg’s texts.

The Archive is grateful to the many authors who donated copies of their publications, all in all 24 books and articles. Many were shelved in the Archive reference book collection while some were passed on to the Library.

RESEARCH PROMOTION AND FACILITATION

RESEARCH PROJECTS AND EXPERTISE

In the academic year 2015/16 the international research project ‘Bilderfahrzeuge. Aby Warburg’s Legacy and the Future of Iconology’, funded by the German ministry for higher education and research and located at the Warburg Institute, continued its work. Next to the individual research activities of its members it organised its ongoing annual lecture series. Speakers were Dr Cynthia Johnston (Institute of English Studies, School of Advanced Studies), Professors Christiane Gruber (University of Michigan), Professor Emeritus David Bindman (University College London), Dr Alexander Marr (University of Cambridge), and Professor Whitney Davis (University of California, Berkeley). The project also organised a number of workshops and conferences both in London and abroad. The workshop Migrating Histories of Art: Self-translation of a Discipline took place at the Kunsthistorisches Institut in Florence (Oct 2016). The one-day workshop Contemporary Image Conflicts: Violence and Iconoclasm from Charlie Hebdo to Daesh (Jan 2016) brought scholars from the Courtauld, SOAS and the University of Michigan together at the Warburg Institute. The annual conference of the project was dedicated to the theme of the Erring Artwork (April 2016) and was held at the Warburg-Haus in Hamburg. The proceedings of the conference will be published shortly. In Hamburg, the project also organised two study-days together with artists from Central Saint Martins University of the Arts and the Institut de recherche et d’innovation, Centre Pompidou (Paris): Apparatus, Inscription, Data took place at the Warburg-Haus. The proceedings have been published in the peer-reviewed journal of Philosophy of Photography. Further, the project assisted the Warburg Institute in the organisation of the conference Aby Warburg 150. Work. Legacy. Promise. Various members contributed to its programme.

Joanne Anderson co-organised and chaired the double session, ‘Artist Networks and Networking in and with Europe 700-1700,’ at the Association of Art Historians annual conference, University of Edinburgh, 7-9 April 2016. Her co-organiser was Jill Harrison at the Open University. She sits on the art history subject area panel for the London Art and Humanities Partnership (for doctoral studentships) and the steering committee of the Research Skills Intercollegiate Network for London-based PhD research in History of Art and Visual Culture.

Charles Burnett continued to direct, as Project Leader, the HERA Collaborative research project ‘Encounters with the Orient’. He is on the Advisory Board for the project ‘Representation and Reality. Historical and Contemporary Perspectives on the Aristotelian Tradition’ (Gothenburg) and represents the Institute in the project in which the Warburg Institute is a collaborator: ‘Ptolemaeus Arabus et Latinus’ (Munich). He is member of the Scientific Council, École pratique des hautes études, Paris. Professor Burnett is founder (with Pedro Mantas España) of a new series published jointly by the University of Cordoba and the Warburg Institute: Arabica veritas, of which the second volume Ex Oriente Lux appeared in 2016, a new journal Mediterranea: International Journal for the Transfer of Knowledge of which the first volume appeared in 2016. He is series editor for ‘Alchemica latina’ (Micrologus sub-series), and ‘Time, Astronomy and Calendars’ (with Sacha Stern); member of the Academic Board of the Classical Series of the Shi’a Institute, London. He is member of the board of the Journal of the Warburg and Courtauld Institute. He is on the jury of the theses of Naomi Aradi (Hebrew University), Nicola Polloni (Pavia University), Thomzs Gruber (Oxford), and Eleonora Bacchi (Bologna).

Alastair Hamilton reviewed articles and research projects for Erudition and the Republic of Letters, The Journal of the Warburg and Courtauld Institutes, Oxford University Press, and Brill. He is a member of the advisory board of The Journal of the Warburg and Courtauld Institutes, of the editorial board of Erudition and the Republic of Letters and Church History and Religious Culture, and edits the series History of Orientalism for Brill.

Jill Kraye continued to serve as an editor of the Journal of the Warburg and Courtauld Institutes and of the series: Warburg Institute Colloquia and Warburg Institute Studies and Texts. She is also one of the editors of the International Journal of the Classical Tradition and is on the advisory boards of: Albertiana; Bruniana & Campanelliana; British Journal for the History of Philosophy; Erasmus of Rotterdam Society Yearbook; History of Raphaële Mouren is co-convenor, with Richard Cooper (Oxford) and Pierre Guinard (public library, Lyon and Centre Gabriel Naudé), of the project Le livre illustré à Lyon au XVIIe siècle. Including the public library of Lyon, the Centre Gabriel Naudé, the Bodleian Library and the University of Oxford, the project was ranked 1st in the 2015 funding campaign of Equipex Biblissima (French Government ‘Investissements d’avenir’ funded) and benefited in 2016 from a one-year academic assistant, Dr Barbara Tramelli, in charge of describing in the Warburg Institute Iconographic Database the illustrations in books printed in Lyon in the 16th century. The team applied for additional funding to continue the project and was successful for the year 2018. Raphaële Mouren is part of the funded-project Bipram, Private libraries in the Modern Times, with Christian Del Vento (Paris 3) and Thomas Lebarbé (Grenoble 3). She is Deputy Director of the Centre Gabriel Naudé (EA 7286), Lyon. She served on the Scientific Council of the funded project Biblissima (Equipex programme, Agence nationale de la recherche); she was a member of the Advisory Council of the association Renaissance, Humanisme, Réforme (2015-2018). She was invited by the High Education French National Evaluation committee (HCERES) to be part of the review committee of a Research Center and was an internal member of the review committee for the Institute of Classical Studies, School of Advanced Study. She was invited to be a peer-reviewer for projects by Fonds national de la recherche scientifique Belgium and Fonds Wetenschappelijk Onderzoek Vlaanderen Belgium. She was a member of the Editorial Board of Histoire et civilisation du livre and the Advisory Board of the Journal of the Warburg and Courtauld Institutes. She was a member of the School of Advanced Study Research Promotion and Facilitation Committee. She co-organised with Guido Giglioni the workshop Symphorien Champier and Lyon: Dynamics of Cultural Assimilation and Dissemination at the Warburg Institute (23 October 2015, co-funded by GRAC-Cerphi and Centre Gabriel Naudé, Lyon); with Professor John O’Brien, the French Renaissance annual workshop, The Warburg Institute, 12 February; with Professor Greg Woolf (Institute of Classical Studies), Dr Carole Boidin (Paris Nanterre University), Dr Olivier Pedeflous (IRHT, Centre national de la recherche scientifique) and Dr Florence Bistagne (University of Avignon – Institut universitaire de France), the international conference coorganised by the Warburg Institute and the Institute of Classical Studies, The afterlife of Apuleius (co-funded by Institut universitaire de France); and with Michèle Clément (Lyon 2), the 6th Annual Workshop Biblon, livre et création littéraire à Lyon au XVIIe siècle, Lyon, 24 June (funded by IRHIM and Centre Gabriel Naudé). She jointly convened the seminar ‘History of Libraries’, sponsored by the Institute of English Studies, the Institute of Historical Research, the Library & Information History Group of CILIP and the Warburg Institute. She attended the annual workshop of Renaissance, Humanisme, Réforme dedicated to Lyon novels in the 16th century (23 January), the seminar on provenances organised by the Consortium of European Research Libraries in the University of Salamanca (15 March) and the Winter meeting of the Rare Books and Special Collections Section, International Federation of Library Associations, in the National Library of Portugal in Lisbon (22-25 February).

Alessandro Scafi is a member of the Renaissance Society of America, the Association of Italian Scientists in the UK and the British Association for Islamic Studies.

Claudia Wedepohl co-organized with Professor David Freedberg, Aby Warburg 150: Work, Legacy, Promise. She is a member of the Board of Editors and editor of Aby Warburg, Gesammelte Schriften, Studienausgabe. She is a member of the London Palaeography Teachers Group and of AIM25 Consortium of Archives in London.
PUBLIC ENGAGEMENT

The Institute Facebook page has risen to over 9,500 subscribers while our Twitter account is followed by over 4,150 subscribers. These social media sites kept followers informed about our events, exhibitions and other news.

An open house event ‘Moving Walls | Opening Doors’ was held on 25 May 2016 for potential students and others interested in the Warburg. It included talks on the two MA programmes, tours of the library, archive and photographic collection, and the showing of Judith Wechsler’s film on the life of Aby Warburg.

The library hosted an exhibition on the history of the Warburg Library during the Aby Warburg 150. Work. Legacy. Promise conference, The Warburg Institute, 13-15 June 2016, curated by Professor Michael Thimann and Dr Thomas Gilbhard (Georg-August-Universität Göttingen) and Professor Philippe Despoix (Université de Montréal). The Archive also organised an exhibition of materials from Warburg’s collections of photographs and documents entitled ‘Verknüpfungszwang’ for four weeks.

Aby Warburg 150. Work. Legacy. Promise was the major event of 2016 to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the birth of the Institute’s founder. The conference, generously supported by the Max Kohler Stiftung, Martha Pulvermacher Stiftung, Samuel Kress Foundation, Warburg Haus, and the German Federal Ministry of Education and Research, attracted 23 distinguished specialist scholars from the UK, USA, Germany, Italy and France as speakers and a group of young academics as respondents. Various members of the Warburg family also attended including Professor John Prag (Aby Warburg’s grandson), Marie Warburg, and the novelist Katharine Weber (both grand-nieces to Aby Warburg). The conference was widely considered to be one of the most successful conferences in the history of the Warburg Institute in terms of outreach to the greater public, the scale of the event and the generation of interest that it engendered around the work of Aby Warburg and his contemporaries. The event revitalised the already-strong reputation of the Institute in scholarly circles, as well as reaching out to a broader and more diverse audience. Over 550 individual attendees visited the event held at the Institute of Education in Bloomsbury over three days. The papers focused around an examination of Warburg’s works, discussing his legacy and examining the potential of his ideas for future scholarship. They ranged from in-depth analyses of Warburgian terms (such as Kulturwissenschaft, Nachleben and serendipity/gute Nachbarschaft), concepts (such as Mneme and Energetik) or works (such as his unfinished study on psychology and linguistics of style, his lecture on Manet and the Bilderatlas) to influential contemporary and earlier thinkers (such as Darwin). The field was also widened to Warburg’s circles and their representatives (including Adolph Goldschmidt and Erwin Panofsky), and moved beyond Warburg’s time into the present day and the future as well as applying a ‘warburgian’ type of scholarship (for example political iconography) and addressing general epistemological questions (such as the exemplum). In a particularly memorable moment, Martin Warnke, representing the Warburg Haus in Hamburg, presented David Freedberg with a replica of Warburg’s snail (a paperweight), told the story of its re-acquisition, and embarked on learned speculation about its iconography. In addition to those who attended the conference, there was also an even larger audience who watched the proceedings online all around the world via a live web stream. Recordings of almost all of the presentations from the conference have been uploaded to the Warburg Institute’s YouTube channel.(https://warburg.sas.ac.uk/whats-on/news/aby-warburg-150-work-legacy-promise); some have been viewed up to 1,900 times since they went online. The event also has reached a wider audience through an article written by Dr Alessandro Scafi, ‘The work and legacy of Aby Warburg – born 150 years ago this month’, Times Literary Supplement 30 June 2016 (http://timescolumns.typepad.com/stothard/2016/06/warburg.html)

TEACHING AND STUDYING

TEACHING

Joanne Anderson took on the convening of the MA in Art History, Curatorship and Renaissance Culture. She taught the core module Iconology and a term 2 option module, Italian Mural Painting and the Making of Visual Cultures, 1400-1500. She organised and led visits to National Gallery exhibitions and to the Government Art Collection for the MA in Art History students. With Alessandro Scafi, John Took and Tabitha Tuckett (both UCL) she organised a visit for all MA students to a Courtauld Institute exhibition displaying Botticelli’s drawings of Dante's Divina Commedia. With the author, Ali Smith, Joanne organised a visit to the Museum of London Archaeology to examine Roman frescoes recently discovered in Lime Street. She contributed sessions to the Techniques of Scholarship course throughout the year for the Institute’s MA and PhD students. She co-supervised two MA dissertations with curators from the National Gallery and mentored two short-term fellows of the Institute. Joanne also contributed to the Warwick-Warburg Doctoral Training programme leading a visit to the National Gallery (May).

Charles Burnett, as a Visiting Professor from 9 April to 7 May 2016, gave a series of our seminars to graduate students at Rikkyo University, Tokyo, on ‘Magic in Shakespeare’s England’ and a public lecture entitled ‘Prospero’s Magic’ on 5 May 2016.

Raphaële Mouren was one of the speakers on the intensive course on the book in the Renaissance organised in Lyon by Ecole normale supérieure de Lyon and Université de Neuchâtel (2-5 November); she coorganized the Resources and Techniques for the Study of Renaissance and Early Modern Culture doctoral programme, coorganised by the Warburg Institute and the Centre for the Study of the Renaissance, University of Warwick (16-19 May); she organised the course Techniques of Scholarship for the Institute’s MA and PhD students (October-March). Raphaële Mouren co-supervised the PhD research of Hélène Lannier (Lyon 2 University).

SPECIAL COURSES, WARBURG INSTITUTE

A course on Resources and Techniques for the Study of Renaissance and Early Modern Culture, designed as specialist research training for doctoral students working on Renaissance and early modern subjects in a range of disciplines, was offered jointly by the Institute and the University of Warwick (Centre for the Study of the Renaissance) for four days from 16-19 May 2016.

An open reading class ‘From Devilry to Divinity: Readings in the Divina Commedia’ was offered in the autumn and spring terms and was presented by Alessandro Scafi and John Took and Tabitha Tuckett (UCL).

A Renaissance Latin course, open to beginners and those wishing to brush up their Latin or to apply a knowledge of classical Latin to the Renaissance and early modern period, was run by Guido Giglioni from 12 – 23 September 2016.

Additional open classes and reading classes were offered during the year in: Arabic Philosophy (Charles Burnett); Esoteric Traditions and Occult Thought (Charles Burnett and Liana Saif, Oxford); Hebrew/Classical Greek (Charles Burnett); Latin Paleography (Charles Burnett); Neoplatonism Study Group (Georgios Tsaglis, Kingston, and Guido Giglioni); Warburg-UCL Scholasticism Group (John Sabapathy and Sophie Page, UCL); Marsilio Ficino’s De amore (Dilwyn Knox, UCL, and Guido Giglioni); and Latin reading (Guido Giglioni).
The PhD degree was awarded to: Katie Reid, ‘The Reception History of Martianus Capella from the Fourteenth to the Sixteenth Century’. (Supervisors: Peter Mack, Charles Burnett and Alessandro Scafi)

Occasional students enrolled for part of the year were: Alba Barceló Plana (University of Barcelona), ‘The Old Testament Cycles in the Catalan Haggadot from the Gothic Period’. Ludovica Cappelletti (Politecnico di Milano), ‘History, architecture and cultural heritage: the case of Mantua and its territory in planning, design and implementation of conservation projects’. Corrado Claverini (University of San Raffaele, Milan), ‘Utopia and Architecture in Renaissance Italy’. Eri Kawakami (University of Kobe, Japan), ‘The Changing Status of Arts in Prague under the reign of Rudolf II’. Camilla Parisi (Scuola Normale Superiore, Pisa), ‘Filippo della Valle (1698-1768)’.
Hernando Sierra (National University of Columbia), ‘Tauromachy as a deforming mirror of the city: Bogota in Antonio Caballero’s Sin Remedio (1984)’.
Mathura Umachandran (Princeton University), ‘Dis/Enchanting Antiquity: Exile and Return to Antiquity in the Thought of Theodor Adorno, Hannah Arendt and Erich Auerbach’.
Martina Zamparo (University of Udine), ‘Shakespeare’s Last Phase. Cymbeline and The Winter’s Tale in the Light of Alchemy and Hermetic Philosophy’.

Bursaries and scholarships from the American Friends of the Warburg Institute, the Hackenbrock Fund, the Saxl Fund, the Joseph Trapp Fund the School of Advanced Study and the Warburg Charitable Trust were held by several MA and PhD students.

MA IN CULTURAL AND INTELLECTUAL HISTORY 1300-1650

Four students registered for the MA in Cultural and Intellectual History 1300-1650. A Foundation Week provided an introduction to the Institute and a context for topics to be covered during the year. Over the first two terms, students took two core courses in Iconology and Religion and Society in Italy, and two options chosen from: Dante and the Medieval Transmission of the Classical Tradition; Imagination, Fantasy and Delusion: Renaissance Philosophy and the Challenges of Representation; Islamic Authorities and Arabic Elements in the Renaissance; Italian Mural Painting and the Making of Visual Cultures, 1400 – 1500; Music and the Arts in the Late Middle Ages and the Renaissance; Prints and Knowledge; Renaissance Material Culture; The History of the Book in the Renaissance; and Sin and Sanctity in the Reformation. In addition to these courses, students took language and palaeography classes and a course on the Techniques of Scholarship. The third term and long vacation were devoted to the dissertation.

Teaching was provided by members of staff and PhD Students of the Institute supplemented by Elma Brenner and Richard Aspin (Wellcome Trust) and Colin Hominski (Senate House Library).

Students registered on the Course during the year will complete their studies in autumn 2016. Earlier students awarded the MA degree in 2014-15 were: Merlin Cox (Distinction), Hanna Gentili, Emilienne Greenfield (Distinction), Rachel Porcher (Distinction) and Isabella Price.
